

MICHELLE B. FERGUSON

Director

BIOGRAPHY

Ms. Ferguson's practice focuses on "preventative" employment law – finding ways to keep businesses out of court by being proactive in identifying and solving employment issues before a claim is filed. Ms Ferguson counsels employers and individuals on all matters of employment law, including providing anti-discrimination training to managers and employees, drafting personnel policies, forms, and employment contracts, and representing clients in all types of administrative hearings. Ms. Ferguson also conducts independent investigations regarding claims of discrimination, harassment, retaliation, and violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act. Ms. Ferguson has presented numerous seminars to professionals in the Denver-metro area on topics such as "Investigations of Employee Misconduct and Implementation of Disciplinary Action", workplace violence, the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Family and Medical Leave Act, the Hiring and Termination Processes, and overviews of Federal and State anti-discrimination laws.
